MISSISSIPPI PRESS ASSOCIATION

Chicago, Sept. 26, 1914.

Mrs. Annie K. Dent, Yazoo City, Miss.

My Dear Mrs. Dent: Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the N. A. W. S. A., has authorized Mrs. Sturley McCormick, the treasurer, to invest a small fund of $704.00, known as the Anna Howard Shaw Fund, in Southern cotton. Miss Shaw, in other words, wishes to have this fund which is under her personal control and is at present lying idle, so to speak in the bank, join the "buy a bale" movement, which is spreading over the country. This fund will purchase fourteen bales of cotton. Mrs. McCormick, under direction from Dr. Shaw, is writing you to authorize you, as president of your state association, to buy a bale of Southern cotton at ten cents a pound. The story of this has been given out to the papers this week and the check should be on its way to you at this time.

I was interested to see by the clippings which came to my desk this morning that you had already conceived of an even more striking idea, "cotton clothes for Southern women." We had already made our plans for launching this little contribution to the "buy a bale" movement, but there is, of course, no conflict whatever between this little plan and yours.

Let me say in closing that this is a very belated announcement to you of the plan, growing out of the fact that the man who addressed our envelopes put you down at Yazoo City, Mississippi, and I have only just learned that you have not received the bulletin which I sent to you.

Very sincerely yours,
CHARLES T. HALLIMAN
Chairman, Press Bureau

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Gardner returned last Thursday from a tour of the St. Louis Exposition and a trip to Davenport, Iowa. Mr. and Mrs. Gardner were born and reared a distance of about seven miles apart, still they did not know each other as children. In those days supplies were bought by the quantity and Mrs. Gardner's family went to one little village and Mr. Gardner's went to another. While up there Mr. Gardner succeeded in getting pictures of their old homes which he is very proud of, one in particular, which was taken of a pear tree which was planted by Mrs. Gardner's father and which was at that time loaded with fruit. To have had a happy childhood is a sweet memory which will cling with us to the last and no matter where we are or what the condition it is always a pleasure to think over the past and it keeps our hearts tender by the thought which memory stirs. Mrs. Gardner is very much improved physically by the outing.

Death of Mr. W. H. Richardson.

Wednesday, Sept. 30th, the news was received that Mr. W. H. Richardson had passed away in Laurel, where he had been making his home for the last two years. Mr. Richardson came to this county from Maryland and engaged in teaching, but in a few years he was married to Mrs. Mary Scott, who at that time was one of the wealthiest women in the county. They moved from the Scott home near Bentonia to Satafina on the Yazoo river, where Mr. Richardson did an extensive furnishing business.

His health failed and they went west when that country was on a boom and so many of our Yazoo people caught the fever, staying there a few years. He helped to organize in this city the Planters' Mercantile Co. in 1893, retiring to again engage in planting, and as his interests were near Bentonia, he and his good wife took up their residence at that place, spending the biggest part of the year there and their summers in some of the Southern resorts.

Years tell and they both became so feeble that they went to live at Laurel with their friends, Mrs. Yates (nee Matilde Lacy) and Miss May Lacy, so that they could spend their last days in comfort. To the bereaved and feeble wife the Herald extends deepest sympathy.

The Two Days' Opening Saturday.

This is the testimony of R. P. Miller, the head of the R. F. Filer Store, which had its opening day and Saturday. The store has been beautifully and artistically decorated by the young men and women who took a special pride in the work and it was a credit to the one who took part in it.

The goods were all arranged in the accessories of trimmings thus showing off the dress goods to the best advantage so that the purchaser could see the beauty and effect of the material which is a great tip-off to the customer who has to have each piece taken out separately. The windows were arranged to represent a pergola with the mistresses beautifully and stylishly dressed waiting. The trellis of the pergola was artistically entwined with Southern Smilax and the top was garlanded with the fruits of the Harvest Festival, which made a beautiful picture, and which was a place of attraction both days.

Up stairs the scene was one of enchantment with all the latest hats, dresses, suits and evening gowns one felt like that surely every want has been anticipated by this firm for the comfort and stylish appearance of its customers.

Mr. Miller and his charming and capable wife never lose an opportunity to give the ladies of Yazoo City and County the pleasure of a close inspection of their entire stock of goods which they take great pains to select. The ladies appreciate their efforts, for each day it was hard to get in this popular store and harder to get out.

Baby David Caruthers.

Tuesday evening this bright and winsome little son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Caruthers was down on the street with his mother giving joy to all with his bright and sweet baby prattle. Wednesday, before the clock struck one, he had joined the angel choir, for diphtheria had clutched his little throat and crushed out his precious life. Little dreaming that death was so near his home, Mr. Henry Caruthers went to his work as usual Wednesday morning. The shock which has come to these heart-broken parents is overwhelming, but they have the sweet consolation that he is written "Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven" and though the little one is snatched away as it were, he is here on earth took little children in his arms and blessed them. How much more precious are they when mortality is laid aside. His memory will be a priceless heritage to which your memory will ever cling and it will keep your heart tender throughout the coming years.

May the God of peace comfort the stricken parents' hearts as only He can, is the prayer of those who represent the Herald.

Reception Next Thursday.

The Young Woman's Society of the Methodist Church will give a reception at the residence of Mrs. Dr. Noblin, next Thursday afternoon, Oct. 15, from 3 to 7 o'clock. Delicious refreshments will be served and a splendid musical program will be rendered during the evening. Admission 25 cents.

Veterans Off to State Convention.

A few of the veterans of the lost cause answered to roll call in Jackson this week, and again exchanged greetings and told of the weary days of marching and fighting which were their lot during the Civil War. Those who went were Messrs. Theo. Schmitt, W. J. Smith, S. S. Griffin, W. K. Kennard and Mr. Blundell. Mr. W. J. Smith and Mr. Kennard went over Tuesday in hopes of being able to head Judge J. A. P. Campbell speak, but he was too feeble physically for the task. Judge Campbell is the last one of the members of the Confederate Congress, the others have long since answered the call to come over the dark river.

DEATH OF MRS. JNO. LEAR

Beloved Yazoo City Lady Has Gone to Her Reward.

"Lord, when saw we Thee an hungered and fed Thee? Or thirsty and gave Thee drink? When saw we a stranger and took Thee in? Or naked and clothed Thee? Or when we saw Thee sick and in prison and came unto Thee?"

"Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

"Come ye blessed of my Father; inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." There has passed from our midst a woman as literally fulfilled the aims of the above as it is possible human nature to fulfill them. The many recipients of her ministrations, so silently, quietly and lovingly done.

My Lear—A King's Daughter and a Daughter of the King, loyal and loving to her Circle, loyal and loving to the Church, of which she was a most faithful and devoted member, loyal and loving to her friends and to God's or and distressed—these have all united a loss which now it seems beyond the power of any human effort to repair.

Of loss to her immediate family, husband, son, daughters, it is beyond the power to speak. They know, beyond what our greatest thoughts are feeble, what they have lost—wife, mother, two words which sum up the height and depth of human loss. We can only extend our hands and hearts in sympathy and pray that God may be gracious unto them.

The passing of Mrs. Lear was one of God's Providences hard to be understood. God needed her. He called, and she answered.

Mrs. John Lear died in Memphis, at the Baptist Memorial Hospital, on last Sunday evening at 7:50 o'clock. She had been ill for a long time and went to Chicago for a summer outing a few weeks ago. On her return journey she stopped over in Memphis for treatment. An operation was performed last Thursday, from which in her weakened condition, she was unable to rally, and never regained her health.

She was a model wife and mother, in whom her loved ones imposed implicit confidence, which she merited by meeting every care and responsibility with womanly grace and kindly affection and thoughtfulness for others. Their home was blessed with children, God's most precious gift—three of whom, two daughters, and one son, live to mourn the irreparable loss of mother. One son preceded her many years ago to the spirit land.

The graces of kindness, patience, meekness and justice, with love for her neighbors, were predominant characteristics in her life. She measured her life by the golden rule. She was a true follower of the Lowly Nazarene, and her faith was exemplified in her daily life. All these graces constitute the noblest type of womanhood.

Besides her husband and children and immediate relatives, many hearts are in sorrow because she is no more. The funeral services were held at her home on Broadway, which she entered a happy bride in 1890. They were conducted by Rev. Albert Martin, assisted by Rev. W. J. Caldwell. A large gathering of friends were present and mingled their tears with the bereaved. As the casket was borne tenderly from the home a soft and gentle mist began to fall, as though the heavens were also weeping that earth had lost one who had so lived that the world was better because of her life. Gently the mist continued to fall until the sad cortege arrived at the cemetery. As she was tenderly lowered into her last resting place, the mocking birds—God's warblers—poured forth their songs of joy and gladness, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." The floral offerings were many and beautiful, which expressed the love of those with whom she was associated.

To her loved ones we offer this consolation, that her dying pillow was but the closing of a useful life and the opening of a glorious eternity.

MEN'S AND BOYS' OUTFITTER

Yazoo City, Mississippi

A Stroll Through Kennington's.

For days the force has been planning to make this one of the most satisfactory openings of the year. The windows received the special attention of the professional eye and hand of Mr. Drake, who gives his entire time to this work. The color scheme was yellow and interspersed between the beautiful millinery, which was on display, were large bunches of Dalia's, the back of the window being almost covered with the flowers and a Cupid with his bow drawn completed the scene which made it a thing of beauty and joy to the large crowd which forgot the war and all the facts that cotton is not bringing the price that it should. They were just as much entranced when once they could get inside for there they were greeted by a bevy of men and women with one desire, and that is to see that every lady is courteously and pleasantly waited on till she is satisfied with every purchase no matter how small. To go down the aisle of this store made one think that they had struck fairy land, for there was so many beautiful things arranged so artistically that one could linger there for hours feasting the eye on the beautiful scene.

Among those who were standing to greet you with a smile, were Mr. Henry Caruthers, who has charge of the dress goods department and is ably assisted by Misses Mabel Durel, Annie Walker, Lucile Waterer, Agnes Pepper and lately, Miss Myra Burrus has been added to the corps of competent and capable employees, and will be glad to have her friends call whenever in need of anything which can be purchased in a first-class millinery store.

Mr. L. Meyer is in charge of the shoe department and is ready and willing at all times to take up his valuable time in trying to fit you with the very shoe which you will need with your new winter suit to complete your toilet.

Up stairs there are just as nice a set of employees who have learned to especially suited to the most fastidious. Mr. N. W. Rankin, who is the real power behind the throne, is always at hand giving help to his employees and customers alike by his helpful suggestions and pleasant manner. The two days were alike, days of pleasure to the ladies of the city and county as well as to the proprietor and his assistants.
